JOHN J. CORY
Principal

Trails are blazed by those with a spirit of high adventure who, guided by brilliant imagination, restlessly seek the unknown.

Trails become well-trodden paths through the purposeful travel of those who have intelligently chosen the way to fields of promise.

Trails become rutted roads by the monotonous plodding of countless blind followers afraid to seek new ways and unwilling to depart from the old.

Will you be the restless seeker—the intelligent chooser—the blind follower? You and you alone can decide.

—JOHN J. CORY.

SENIOR PLAY

Standing in Back—Robert Hartman, Gordon Olinger, Gertrude Finnell.

Sitting—Carroll Hutchins, Fred Goodale, Virginia Lee, Martha Lawrence, Miss Alice Aronson, Director; Bertha Lackner, Eleanor Reese, Ted Davis, Wayne Wernet.

THE SENIOR PLAY

" . . . The Amalgamated Thespian Association decided to give 'Camille,' and with that decision the settlement experienced the equivalent of volcano and earthquake. While the women scratched and shrieked over the title role, the men nobly gave their parts away. Handsome but painfully shy Biff Looks, when given the hero's part, suddenly left for Santa Fe. Two more comely gentlemen followed him when offered the role. Months later that trio quietly returned and resumed house-keeping. 'Camille' had been given (with an all-female cast) weeks ago; relieved, these gentlemen once more felt at home. That is probably why Biff was so easily cornered one day. From a circle of expectant faces a voice said, "We're giving 'Romeo and Juliet' and we wondered . . . "

This worthy book comes out before the performance of Big Hearted Herbert, but from the rehearsals our correspondent saw, success will surely perch on "Herb's" shoulder. The play is balanced with humor and homey logic, enough of both to sustain interest. There are, of course, domestic complications and amusing situations that promise much.

Those that you won't see but that really deserve more than just these words are those costumers, prop men and make-up artists that every play has and depends upon. After the play words may fail you; but, during the play, if they fail the actors, Jane Harrison will be there script in hand. Costume supervision falls to Marjorie Line, while the traditional office of props men becomes props ladies with Jean Hatton and Doris Rhoads doing their best. As for makeup, Judy Easton will wield the puff and eye shadow. Willy Phillips finds the programs and advertising her job. The direction comes from Miss Aronson and Edith McDonald. It is upon these "faces in the wings" that the play depends. We salute you!

JUNIOR PROM COMMITTEE

"... not to be outdone by mere elders, the younger generation blazed forth with a first class barn dance themselves. Swooping down on the opera house they unscrewed the seats from the floor; then, after placing the pianner player and the fiddler on the stage, they swung into a frenzied Virginia reel."

A modern parallel was the Junior Prom. They might have transported the South Pole as a scene for the dance, so real were the artists' decorations. Snowballs, icicles and penguins were on every hand in the gym, but with strange inconsistency, the South Corridor was drowned in palms, pillows and plants. This, they said, was Southland.

Here in Antarctic tropics the Juniors laughed and danced; here they gamboled and romped in one of the year's most effective social capers.

SENIOR PROM COMMITTEE

SENIOR PROM

"... beneath diamond studded skies they danced. With comets in tin lanterns to shed golden light, they laughed and stamped out rhythms on the rough wood floors to a raucous fiddle. Perhaps they laughed louder than their progeny would on another far off and bright night when young moderns danced on smooth wax to a softly humming orchestra ..."

Amid planetary airs and with the theme of 'stars' predominating, a galaxy of Southern satellites and their male meteors danced to the heavenly strains of Mars Kramer and his twelve exponents of the melody way at the four-star event of the year—the Senior Prom. In the starring roles Doris Rhoads, chairman of the dance committee, and Charles Adamson, prexy of the senior student diadem, led the sparkling and dazzling array of dancers, who enjoyed a night of starry pleasures. The five-point theme was carried out in the decorations. A huge star, draped with spirals of gleaming cellophane, formed the apex for hundreds of streamers from all corners of the Rebel gym. The programs and the refreshments also carried out the star motive. It was truly a celestial evening in an ethereal paradise.

A CAPPELLA

"... with only the murmur of the breeze through the pines, the gurgle of water, and the staccato crack of fire for accompaniment, the little group sang to the hills and sky. As one voice the melody came from their throats—they sang because they loved to sing."

Brilliant growth and popularity has been the reward of this thoroughly worthwhile group. Starting humbly, it is now grown to a class project through the earnest effort of Miss Loraine Nelson, the director.

Its seventy members have sung at the Colorado Education Association convention, for the Denver Music Society, and at several other public gatherings, earning much sincere praise. Widening their scope, they performed over KLZ, singing not only four but six and eight part harmony, difficult for even trained adult choruses.

Again South welcomes the new and claims the title of "Leader."

 With Music by Mr. John Roberts's Orchestra

"... castanets snapped tingling rhythms as the curtain came up on 'Carmen' in the very new opera house. Most of the audience stood, for the few dozen seats were taken hours before the show started. When the curtain squeaked open, the gaping audience, with much imagination, saw Spanish villas on the tiny stage in place of the sparsely painted canvas that trembled at each movement behind it. . . ."

When another curtain swept open years later, those long dead pioneers really would have stared. No longer was imagination needed to create the illusion; there was Spain!—tuneful music with a brilliant background, slippered señoritas clacking high heels in a Spanish beat, well-sung songs from young throats.

Showing an amazing possession of talent for dancing, Rachel Lois Crose won much applause. She caught the atmosphere of the fast-moving piece with her expert dances, much to the large audience's delight.

Color! Song! Drama! This was Don Alonso's Treasure—the gay musical success of '34.

GIRLS' GLEE

"... in the throes of artistic inspiration the women folk dropped their chores and organized a strictly feminine trio. Later, augmented, it became a quartette; then a sextette, and finally, when a seventh member joined these vocal ranks, at a loss for a name they called it a 'chorus'."

It remained for their children's children five generations later to develop a full-voiced chorus of seventy. Directed by Miss Loraine Nelson and accompanied by Janice Morton, they accomplished success after success. First in the All City Chorus, during Music Week; then in Don Alonso's Treasure, and finally in the All School Show they displayed admirable training and enthusiasm. Of course, they gave several assemblies and outside programs as periodical outlets for their tuneful art. These, too, were delightful and well received—a statement which goes without saying.

BOYS' GLEE CLUB

Front Row—Jack Ennegon, Bob Morris, John Witt, Hal Dunning, Gerald Coleman, Sam Smeeton, Billy Morgan, Forest Hein, Martin Pens, Kenneth Heiber, John Flemming, Glenn Bressler, Leo Murray.

BOYS' GLEE

"... on foot or horseback, in forest or desert, blazing paths, or resting around the fire, they sang. Swarthy and tan skinned, they attempted to capture harmony after their rustic fashion. . . ."

Today the sons of those forefathers, though not so huge and husky, make up for this lack with studied vocal performances. These boys did capture the melodies they attempted with the result—a thing of beauty. With anything from the latest popular ditty to operatic choral pieces they grappled, and they came out melody masters.

During Music Week, at the Teachers' Convention, and the Kiwanis Contest they appeared arm in arm with tuneful entertainment and success. Tramping ahead as guide, Miss Loraine Nelson skillfully directed the group, and Kenneth Hieber not only pitched tents but kept pitch for the boys as he played his piano.

THE CADET BALL

"... little boys played at soldier—shooting Injuns, killing buffalo. They were aiming to be like Paw when they got growed. And, shucks, a feller's gotta practice!"

Now, those young sons sweat at their drills. The game is no longer play but serious duty wherein they combine mental and physical effort. These boys devise various stratagems, map out their make-believe fields of battle, and plan new ways to defeat the enemy.

In recent rifle matches our Rebel Cadets came in third, competing with more than sixty schools. Later this summer they will participate in an all city drill competition. Chances are South will shine again as victor, for the cadets have as motivation Pop Kohl and Major Combs, the sponsors.

Here is the bulwark of a military nation; here is protection and assurance.

SOCIAL HOUR

"... the roar of the square dance carried for miles and the City Dance Committee shone with misplaced pride. It was they who had organized this chaos that was now enjoyed by the rustics. Every 'Satidday' they had one of these meetings of the more socially inclined. Windows vibrated; guffaws shattered the silence of the sleeping town. Nine o'clock. This was night life in the early settlement."

No exuberance runs rampant at South, for here the Rebels take their social hours with quiet enjoyment. It is probably due to the committee that arranges these dances.

These social lights are picked by Mr. Cory; then they do the unusual by electing officers from their number. They were Line (Marjorie), Munn (Bill), and Watson (Jack) for this last year.

Of course we haven't been favored with many socials this semester—the epidemic, you know—but in spite of this we recognize the merit of the group. The few they have given were well-planned and enjoyable.

As a private celebration they started to have a little party of their own—but they just didn't get around to it.

FORENSIC

“ . . . young Tim mounted the stump and spoke. Big words and bigger gestures came forth, but unconscious of the immaturity Maw and Paw beamed and were proud. . . . ”

Now decades later young Tim's offsprings steps to the platform, and as he speaks his mother and father sit happy—perhaps a bit awed for they hear deep thought profoundly presented in a mature way.

Those that made fond parents proud with their oratorical skills were: Shaffroth speakers, Bertha Lackner and Alan Hall; Kiwanis contestant, Hugh Thomas; Francis Geib, Sherman Sutliff, Gordon Olinger and Bill Williams in the Interscholastic Debates.

Miss Aronson and Mr. Whitney both felt pride's elation, for they, too, were mighty, mighty proud of their brood.

SPORTS

"... often bones cracked; often blood flowed, but those pioneering huskies came back again and again, playing hard as they displayed apelike brawn."

CHAMPIONS

Though time has modified the savagery of modern sport, there yet remains a driving will to win that only sheer force of numbers or extreme superior strength will conquer. South's athletic Rebels illustrated this in the '34-'35 season by dragging home pound after pound of high score bacon. Frequently they bobbed up with amazing wins; never beaten, they came back determined to win. And they did!

From those early pioneers before them, they have inherited that joy of play and pride of strength that is the possession of victors.

LAURELS

After a nose to nose race with West throughout the entire season, South gridmen, under the traditional Confederate fire, held the Cowboys for a tie in the final encounter, forcing them to share the championship laurels, and closing Coach Johnson's second successful grid season.

Breaking the jinx with East's invulnerable netman, Rebel racquet wielders brought home the championship with Manual in hot pursuit.

The basket boys, with a marked end spurt, pulled up to second place, entitling them to enter the divisional tournament.

CHEERLEADERS

Braving the blizzards' icy chills, the indefatigable cheer leaders buoyed the rooting section to an excited pitch. Their organized waves of grandstand enthusiasm spurred the dauntless Rebels onward.

SPORTS CLUB

"... no longer content to see the boys at play, the maids of the Settlement slipped from the kitchens and vanished in the jungle of pine and fir. There in the privacy of dumb hills they ran and jumped and even wrestled after a feminine fashion. Jennie stepped a dozen paces from the target and shot an arrow with all her strength. It see-sawed through the air and stuck the very edge of the circle at a crazy angle. She stood speechless at the evidence of her skill. Prudence and Charity raced each other, but after a few yards both fell over a log. Jessie Polk, seeing how high she could jump, found herself dangling from the lower limb of a tree. Again the kitchens filled, and the chores moved to completion."

Ah, but the Sports Club is different. They confess being regular Amazons. Yes, that's it. Amazons. Information tells us that they really have a jolly time, too. They work a bit for some points or others, then they have the privilege of lounging in their rather elegant club room. It is in this room that they, too, hold wild initiations. Oh, yes, they have a banquet in the lunchroom at the end of the year to distribute awards.

Those wielding official powers are Eva Heimer, Betty Braucht, Margaret Mety, Judith Easton, Elizabeth Suskin. The sponsors are Mrs. Florence Carlson and Miss Mary Patterson.

S CLUB

"... the men retired to the saloon to discuss any subject that pleased them. Here, alone, they told tales and swore friendships. Though the more abstaining sex never entered there, they hung a sign on the swinging doors of the barroom: 'NO WIMMIN'...'"

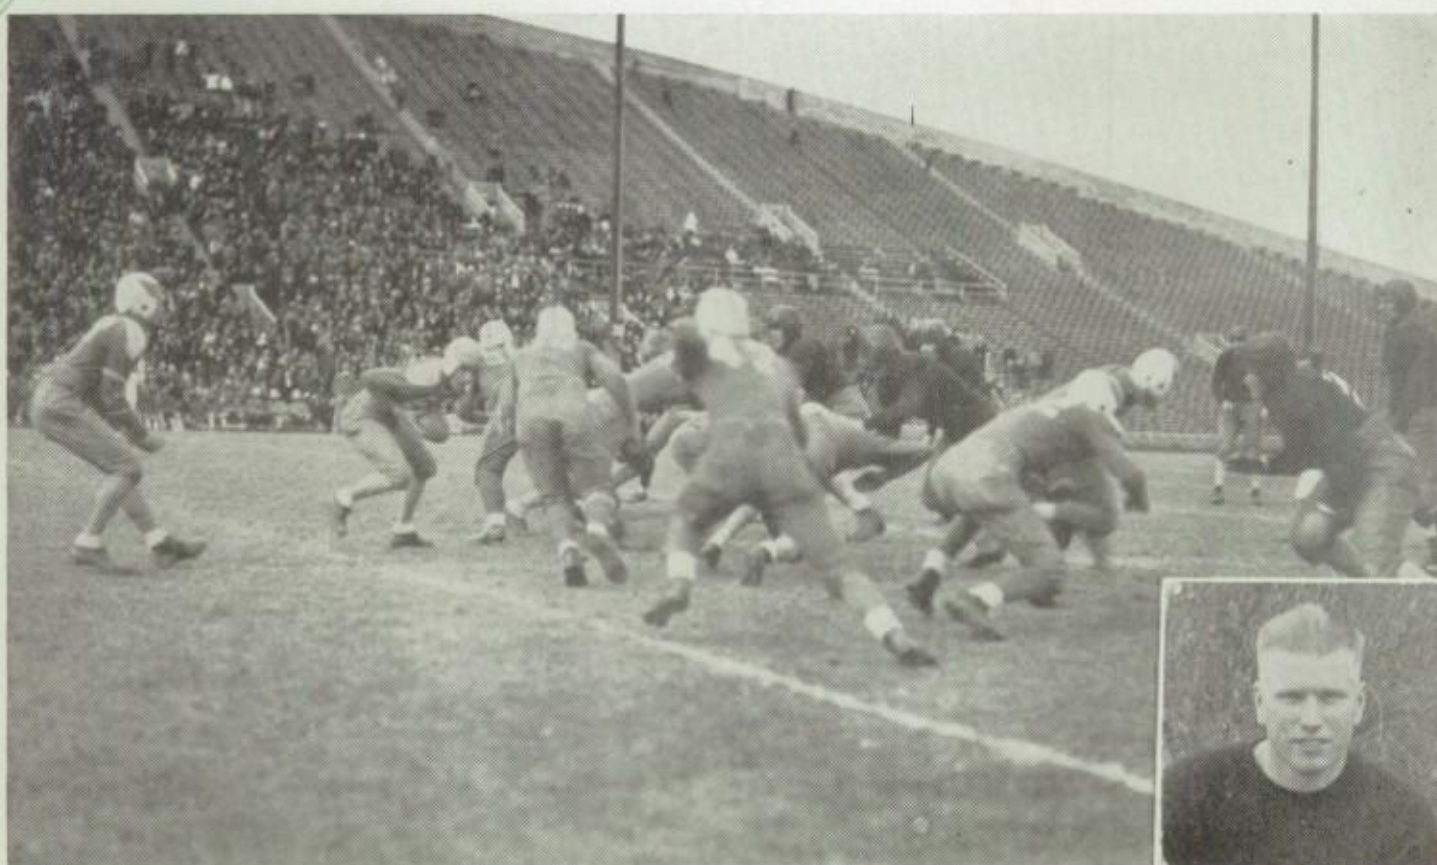

Though no drinks are served in the S Club quarters, like their granddaddies they gather, relate tales of prowess, and make fast friends. Now, in addition to the lettermen of football, basketball, baseball, track, and wrestling, they welcome the golf, tennis, swimming and hockey boys.

As for contributions to the school, these huskies have given basketball and wrestling rallies and were in charge of athletics on Purple and White Day. Of course they were helped by Coach Johnson and Miss Burnham, who supplies a much-needed feminine influence.

Officers? They were Jack McFarland, Bob Hill, and Bill Butcher.

We might add that under the disguise of a steak fry, new members are lured to the mountains and there initiated. Tags around the wrist are used to identify the bodies.

FOOTBALL

SOUTH VS. EAST

Howard Johnson

Howard Johnson's South High Rebels started the football season with a strong 12-0 victory over East, 1933 defending champions. Gaining possession of the ball in the first period, the Rebs finished a 45-yard march with a touchdown, Bill Butcher scoring.

Anderson, McFarland, and Woudenberg were outstanding on the line. South, 12; East, 0.

SOUTH VS. MANUAL

Manual Thunderbolts fell before a fighting Rebel eleven to a score of 7-0 in their early season encounter. The Southerners' lone touchdown came when Bill Butcher received Hill's deflected pass over goal. Jack Anderson, right tackle, recovered a Manual fumble on the Thunderbolt's 11-yard line, making the score possible.

The game was even in regard to first downs and yardage gains. Wes Glass's coffin corner and long spiral punts featured the game. South, 7; Manual, 0.

WES FOILS WEST!

FOOTBALL

SOUTH VS. WEST

West High's Cowboys handed the Rebels their only defeat of the season when they edged out a one-point lead in their crucial battle. A well-directed place-kick by Will Rogers, left tackle, gave West undisputed first place in the prep race. With one minute and fifteen seconds left to play, Hill led a march from South's 38-yard line for a score. Jack Hatchett shared honors in this touchdown drive. The last seconds of the game were climaxed by a 14-yard pass to Glass over the goal line. Hill's kick was only inches wide. South, 6; West, 7.

SOUTH VS. NORTH

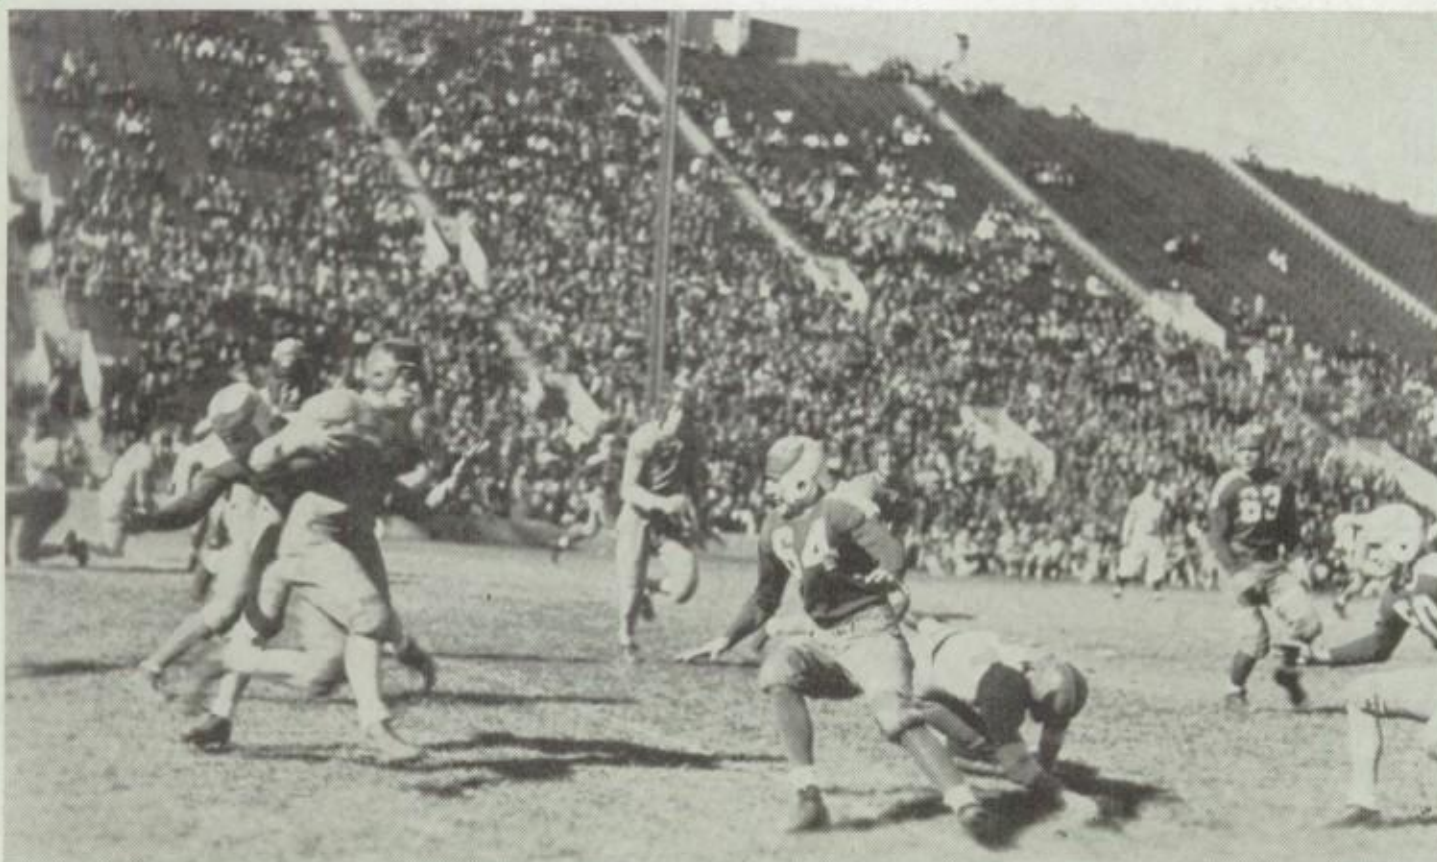

South kept a close stride on West's trail for the league leadership by defeating North 10-0. In the third period, Hill's trained toe gave South a narrow 3-0 lead by sending the ball squarely between the posts.

In the same quarter, Woudenberg, Rebel left tackle, recovered Chuck McCool's fumble on the Norsemen's 5-yard stripe, enabling Butcher to score for the Rebels. Bob Hill's conversion raised the count. South, 10; North, 0.

CLOSING IN!

FOOTBALL

SOUTH VS. EAST

Buck Herndon, C.
John Woudenberg, L.T.
George Green, L.G.

Opening the second round, South met the East High Angels and held them scoreless while the Rebs piled up five touchdowns and three place kicks to win the melee. It was Hill's big day; he accounted for 27 points. Bill Butcher went over for the other touchdown.

In the third period, Hill cut loose for 35 yards and a touchdown, and reached the peak of the day when he accounted for 2 scores in 3 minutes.

Glass, Anderson and Woudenberg played stellar football in opening holes. South, 33; East, 0.

SOUTH VS. MANUAL

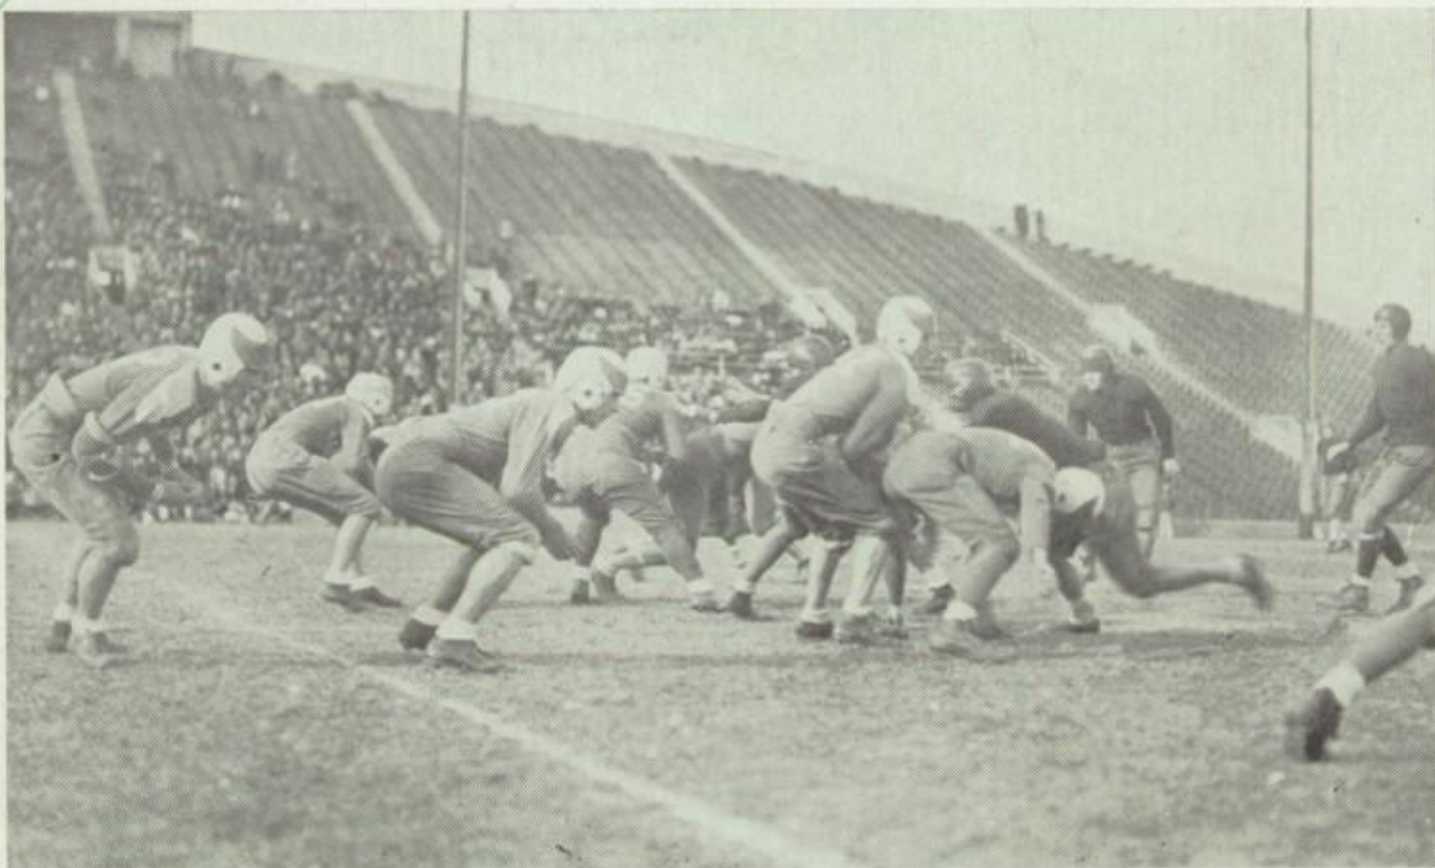

In their second grid battle with the Manual High eleven, the fighting Confederates eked out a 7-0 victory to put them within one-half a game of first place. The first and second periods found the two teams scoreless, neither team showing any superiority.

However, in the third quarter, the Rebels opened a furious drive which netted them 48 yards and a touchdown. Bob Hill went over for the count, and added the extra point with a perfect place-kick between the uprights. This drive began when McFarland fell on South's own kick-off after Wes Glass purposely booted an onside kick. South, 7; Manual, 0.

HEP! ONE-TWO!

FOOTBALL

SOUTH VS. WEST

Chuck Adamson, R.G.

Bert Butcher, R.T.

John Pierce, R.G.-R.H.B.

South versus West! The most critical grid-iron battle of the 1934 prep season found the second place Rebels and the leading Cowboys battling to a scoreless tie at the final gun. Several times the West eleven threatened the Rebel goal, only to lose the pigskin on downs or fumbles. A punting duel was waged between Glass, Southern halfback, and Waltman, stellar back on the Cowboys' team.

Late in the third quarter, Glass, attempting to punt out from his own goal, was rushed by four West linesmen, and the ball was down behind goal. However, to the utmost relief of the Rebel rooters, all four West players were ruled offside. Glass's next attempt placed the ball in midfield where it remained until the close of the game. South, 0; West, 0.

SOUTH VS. NORTH

South's fighting Rebels failed to overcome the Thanksgiving Day jinx in their grid conflict with the North High Vikings and fell short of an undisputed championship to tie with West for that honor. This tie was due to West's surprising defeat by the Manual Thunderbolts.

The Vikings' score came in the third period on a completed pass into the end zone. The Southerners unleashed a passing attack in the last quarter to put the ball on North's 5-yard stripe. Butcher went over to tie the count on his second plunge over right guard. Hill's place-kick was wide. South, 6; North, 6.

TENNIS

Hail Champions! Crowning a scintillating season, losing their grip in only two matches to Manual, the mighty Rebel racqueteers brought home to South championship laurels for the first time in many years.

The three singles netmen played very admirable tennis. Fiery Harold Holland drove his way to remain number one man throughout the season, Manual's Konopka, his lone surpasser.

Bert Stackhouse, seeded number two, consistently outplayed his opponent from East, but Paul Gill resumed play in his place in the remaining matches, overcoming East and West, but losing to Manual.

The two doubles teams, Orange and Reed, Kemmerling and Hazeltine, were the staunch standbys of the year, winning their way through all opposition.

Orange and Reed, first doubles duo, superbly volleyed and net-played, winning three out of three encounters.

The alternate pair, Kemmerling and Hazeltine, picked an "on day" to capture the only shut-out sets of the year from West.

Coach Stone deserves much credit for leading these boys of championship caliber to the very top.

OUT FOR A DRIVE!

GOLF

South golfers, rallying after a slow start, putted up to a strong middle position and finished the season in third place under their new coach, Bill Miller.

Rebels, defaulting in the first Manual game, played off the match at the close of the season for a 9-0 win, driving South from the cellar to middle honors.

Seeding the players for each contest by their shooting scores of the previous week, Roy Seaholm and Chuck Chamberlain were first team club-wielders most of the season with Fremont Reid of the second pair giving Chamberlain close competition. Chuck Foster was Reid's steady partner in the usual second duo.

Tom Baird, Maynard Blanford, Ralph Glaze, and Warren Hartman played alternate, backing up the top and second teams with first class golf.

Captain Roy Seaholm held an undisputed number one position among the Rebel iron men, shooting an average 80. After serving as temporary captain during the tournament, he was unanimously elected for the honorary title.

Seaholm, Chamberlain, Reid, Foster and Baird were awarded letters.

BASKETBALL

Coming up from a slow start, the Rebel basketballers broke into the second round and battled their way up into the second place position. A one-point loss for the Rebels gave Manual a well-deserved first, while a playoff with North showed South's superiority for second honors.

Levy (guard, forward, and center): A lot can be expected from this junior who showed up so well in the latter part of the season. He started out as a guard, but Coach Miller shifted him to forward and center. Sam will be remembered as the boy who played all three positions equally well.

Munn (forward, guard): Starting out as a reserve guard in the early part of the season, "Bill" had little chance to show his stuff. "In the playoff game against North, he played as spectacular and fine a game as I have ever seen in high school," says Mr. Miller. "His speed and excellent driving power made him an effective ball player."

Railey (forward): Matt was the outstanding ball-hustler on the team. His spectacular shooting, fiery spirit, and good floor work qualified him for all-city.

McFarland (guard): Jack was the squad's best defensive player. He was usually assigned to the opponent's best shot, and he held him down.

Anderson (forward): Ray's specialties were long side shots, steady passing, and a general good defensive game.

BASKETBALL

Kolb (guard): Bill's floor play and scoring ability made him one of the best guards in the city. Even though he was the "tough luck" boy of the team, unable to play during illness and injuries, his spirit carried the team far. After serving as acting captain during most of the season, he was elected honorary captain by the team. He was also placed on all-city.

Borgeson (forward): In the early part of the season Carl was outstanding for his floor play and general team work. His knack of cutting off opponents' plays and coming up with the ball after a scramble made him invaluable.

Bill Kolb
Carl Borgeson

McBurney (forward): Playing as Railey's understudy, Jim had little chance to show his good marksmanship. His excellent floor work and ability to shoot equally well with either hand will make him an asset to next year's team.

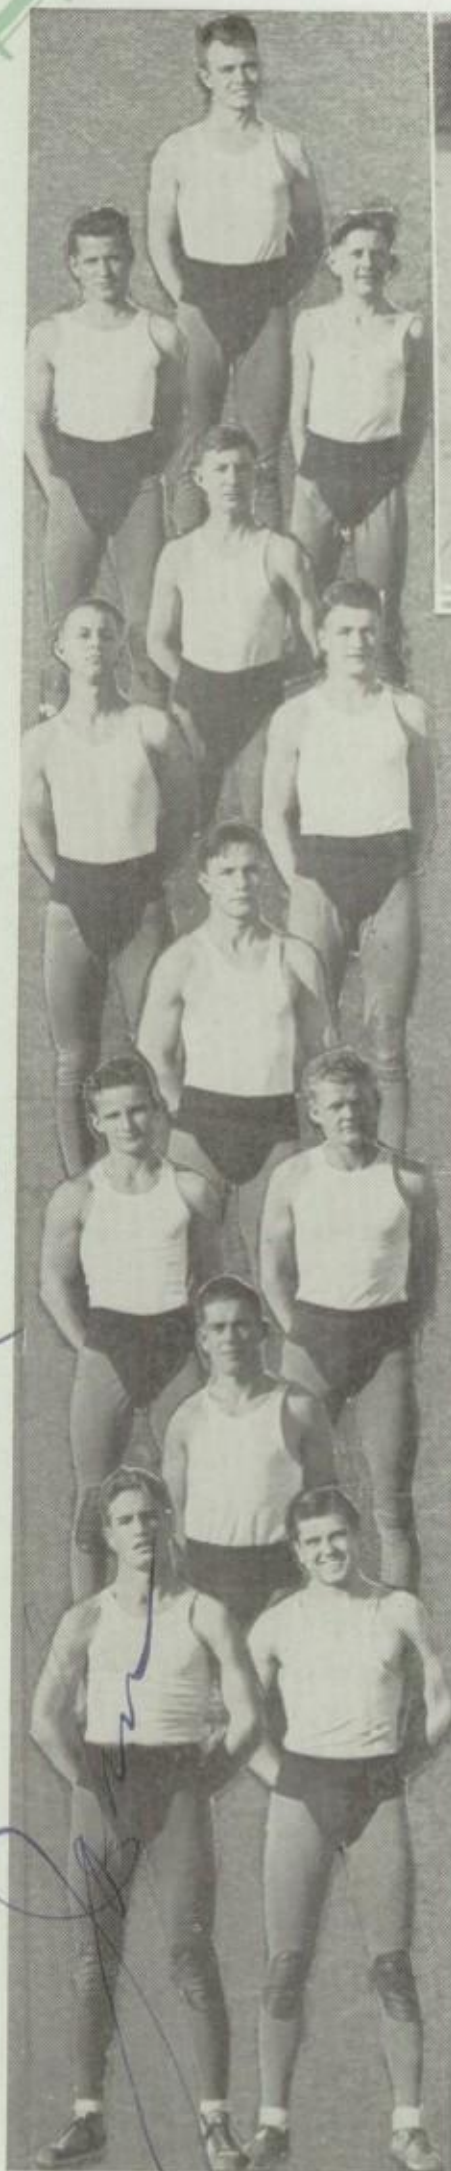

King (center): Harry's special ability was his effectiveness under the basket in taking the ball off the backboard. He was also a good shot with either hand.

Wernet (manager): After acting as unofficial manager for two years, Wayne earned his way to manage the '35 squad, a job which he did well because of his interest and team spirit.

WRESTLING

Hart (115): Harold was thrown from his throne of all-city by North. He is a three-letter man.

Crook (105): Bill fought successfully in his first two matches, but was out the rest of the season with a mat infection.

Dunklee (95): Pop Kohl said about George, "If he improves as much next year, I pity his opponents."

Williams (105): Ernie continued doing his best where Bill had left off for the remaining matches.

Brown (145): Jack was in the toughest class in the city but showed dogged determination for one with so little mat experience.

Smith (135): Art battled hard in all four matches but failed to down heavier opposition.

Wisherd (165): Bob fought out of his class and although he didn't win, he showed that he had the fight that counts.

All-City Louthan (125): Cutting down his weight seemed to build up the strength of Gene, who clinched his last opponent to attain all-city ranks.

All-City Pierce (155): No defeats! In view of his superiority Johnny was awarded all-city.

Erard (165): Norm staunchly took Green's place, but could not outgrapple his Manual and West opponents.

Woudenberg (Heavyweight): Illness forced John to evacuate his all-city throne.

Anderson (Heavyweight): Jack stepped in the latter part of the season in lieu of Woudenberg.

SWIMMING

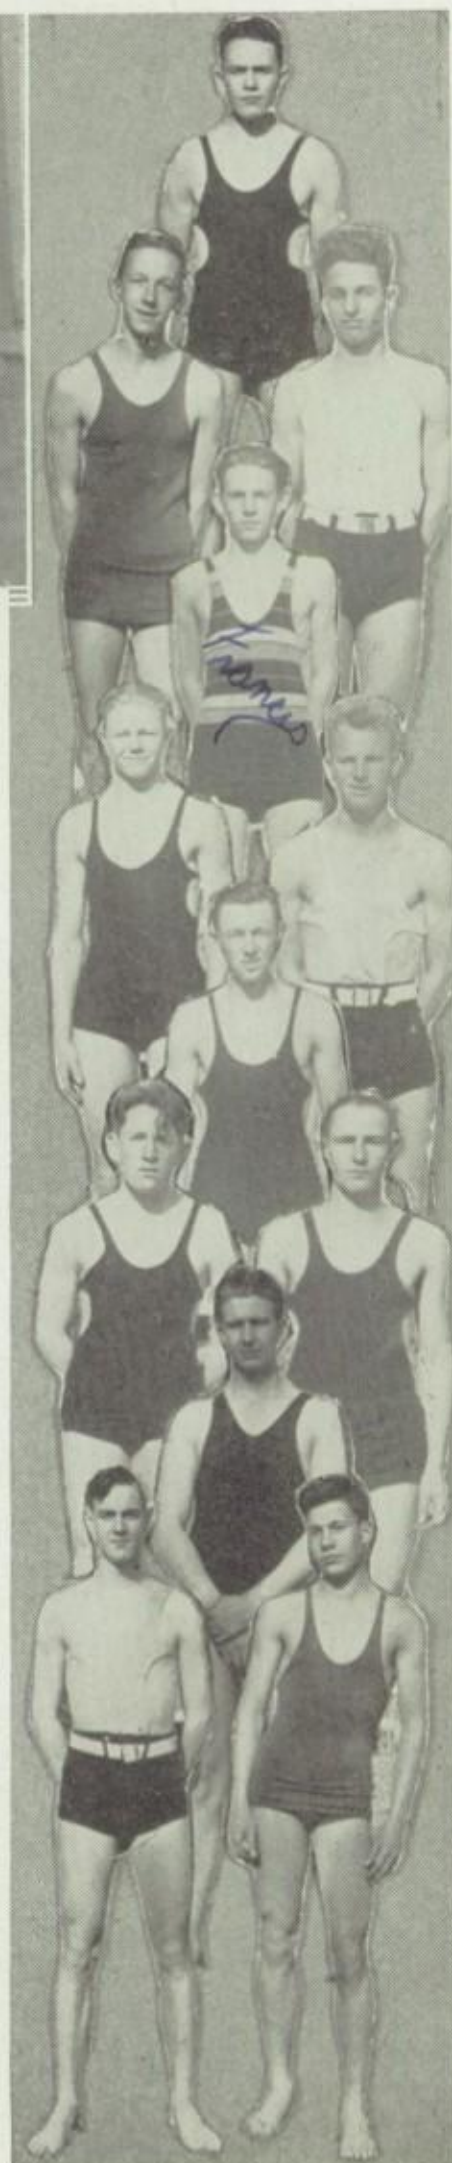

Unable to out-swim the Angel mer-men, South's swimmers captured second place in the all-city swim meet held at the D. A. C. March 3, with 18 points to 40 for East.

Bob Hartman, Bill Chapman, Robert Gordon, and Joe Manning represented South in the 200-yard relay, coming in second. Kenneth Twiss, South's most efficient breast stroker, churned his way to win fourth place in that event. Frank Grant was the second best backstroker in the city.

Representing the Rebels in the 100-yard free style, Robert Hartman, paddling his best, brought third place.

The most versatile member of the Rebel squad, Joe Manning, placed in two events, third in the 50-yard free style and fourth in the 50-yard medley relay.

Ralph Donald's excellent form in the swan, jack knife, and his ability to execute a full gainor gave him second place in diving. Art Williams supervised the boys with the assistance of Wayne Graff manager.

BASEBALL

The Southern nine put forth all their steam throughout the entire season in defense of their 1934 title.

Losing the majority of his veteran batsmen, Coach (Pop) Kohl built up a new team around his few remaining lettermen: Wes Glass, outfielder; Ray Anderson, first baseman; Sam Levy, third baseman; and George Morris, an outfielder.

Coach Kohl

The biggest problem for the mentor was replacing his last year's all-city batteries. Bob Casey, a junior right-hander, developed into a first class hurler, with Dick Orange behind the bat. Jack Anderson and Hank Bank, unexperienced at the beginning of the season, warmed up to be real smoke-ball hurlers.

Wes Glass dished out a real specialty in curved ball pitching. Pop Kohl continued again this year as coach with the aid of Jack Ennegon and Paul Mount, managers.

TRACK

The 1935 Reb tracksters had a successful season in the mile, quarter mile, relays, pole vault, broad jump and shot put.

Bob Hill hurdled in top style for his third and last year at South. Roy Seaholm, after acquiring an all city reputation last season, was the fastest mile strider in the city, breaking the city record in the city meet.

Coach Miller

Harry King, high jumper, also clipped off the 440 in fast style. South's broad jump and 100-yard dash records were both defended by Ed Powers.

In the city meet South ceded the '34 championship to East, and stepped down into third place.

Miller and Stone were the mentors of this sport.

SPEEDBALL

The Girls' Athletic Club started the 1934 season off with speedball. This sport is a combination of soccer and basketball and is composed of several features of both games. The Blue Racers, led by Catherine Nowlen, defeated the Hot Footers, captained by Margaret Mety, to capture the championship. Outstanding players were Ellen Heimer, Dot Lawhead, Norma Learned, and Roberta Brandow. The Blue Racers also defeated Pauline Sundine's Possums, winner of the consolation tournament. Beulah Guthrie aided the sponsor, Miss Mary Patterson, to manage speedball.

Eva Heimer

TENNIS

Honors in tennis were monopolized by the Heimer family. Eva defeated Ellen to win the singles championship and together the two girls conquered Marie Duncan and Joanne Krier in a closely played doubles match. Helen Hamilton, Dorothy Lawhead, Kate Milne, Mildred Fritsch and Phyllis Corry offered keen competition to the leaders. Lucille Bucher managed this sport.

VOLLEYBALL

Charlotte Mosconi led the Peaches to victory in a very evenly matched tournament. Doris Wilkins aided Mrs. Carlson in planning and conducting the schedule of games. Although there were no sensational players, Ruth Alquist, Helen Clark, Roberta Brandow, and Barbara Ensign proved to be consistent performers.

HORSESHOES

Leticia Gramcho was victorious over Florence French in the girls' minor sport, horseshoes. Roberta Brandow was in charge of this sport.

TRACK

Leticia Gramcho

High jump; broad jump; hop, step, and jump; baseball; basketball throw; and the shot-put were the features of the girls' track meet. Although many events were won by last year graduates, many winners are still at South. Ruth Alquist threw the baseball 153 feet with Eva Heimer and Norma Learned second and third. Beulah Guthrie was second in the high jump, reaching the mark of 48.5 inches. Flora Glass hurled the shot 26 feet, 7 inches. Ruth Alquist was second with 26 feet, 4 inches, and Norma Learned was third with 26 feet. Eva Heimer scored 165.8 feet in the baseball throw; Harriet Cass was runner-up with 163 feet.

These 'wimmin' with their feverish enthusiasm were a real driving force of the settlement."

Following their ancient "fore-mothers," South, too, has a feminine, and enthusiastic group. This is the Pep Club. And well they live up to the club's name, for they make South alive with their bee-like activity.

The group is under the sponsoring of Miss Alice Aronson. The officers this year were: June Schroeder, president; Esther White, vice-president; Kate Milne, secretary; Edith Stocker and Maxine Eurtion, joint treasurers.

Members of the council are: Isabelle Cantrell, Eleanor Reese, Thelma Herring, Dorthie Hamill, Marjorie Line, Virginia Lee, Janice Morton, Vivienne May, Gwendolyn Gwinn, Dorothy Nitz, Elizabeth Suskin, Barbara Scott, Fay Anderies, Frances Budd, Ethelyn Tarrant, Margaret Van Stone, Bonnie Marie Essig.

CHESS CLUB

"... stony still they sat, those two old men over the checker board. Abbie had seen them as she went to school that morning. Positions unchanged, they still sat as she returned home in the late afternoon. Abbie sighed, shifted her books under the other arm and strode on home between the ruts in the road."

Many of us have believed that the N. R. A. had reached South when weekly, in the bulletin, we found that "the C. P. A. will meet after school." This is the Chess Players Association. (Plain Chess Club to us.)

Skillful are the members as they sit in silent contemplation of the next move. Recently Chess devotees were held breathless for days as a tournament progressed in a third floor show case. Players planned moves while looking in between classes, then reported their moves to Mr. St. John, the sponsor.

Those whose noses flattened on the glass pane were: Marie Butz, Marie Tovey, Albion Afman, Maurice Sikkens, Kerwin Roche, Denver Dierks, Wayne Jordan, Monte Wenner, David Dickinson, John Hodge, George Schjelderup, Ray Fickel, Jay Berry, Jay Anema, Burton Folsom, Elwood Smith.

COMMERCIAL WINNERS

"... to measure the intellect and to ascertain the probability of future success, Professor Crabtree held monthly spelling bees. Much midnight wax was melted in preparation for these prophetic events. It caused a proud flutter when the parents heard the words rattled off, letter by letter. Hannah would be something some day! Just hear how fast she spelled 'Washington'!"

South has a more accurate method for determining skill; it is the annual Commercial Contest. Here, pitted against the best, the contestants find precarious going. Those that win may well feel proud, for they have triumphed over more than four hundred Rebels.

Those future business magnates are Esther Mae Benn (fifty-five words a minute), Reeva Tipton (fifty-four), and Ethelyn Tarrant (fifty-two). These were of the advanced class; the beginners that earned recognition were Gerald Pool (forty-four), Billie Cain (forty-four), and Margaret Riemer (thirty-six). Miss Benn and Mr. Pool will both see their names on the Commercial Contest Plaque, each letter engraved deep in gold metal.

This is something to remember, for this signifies accomplishment.

STAMP CLUB

SOUTH PHILATELIC CLUB

“ . . . Mrs. Elijah Zephyr, in her New York residence, fluttered to the desk, settled down on the chair, and twittered as she composed a letter. She was writing to her rash sister who had eloped and, with her newly acquired husband, had joined a wagon train going West. Months passed, spring ripened into summer, and, as autumn blew over the hills, the letter arrived. The event had a startling effect on the Settlement, especially the receiver's son. One day, going through her souvenirs, the mother found a neat square cut from the corner of that letter with a pen knife. Young Tim had begun his stamp collection.”

When we asked for information about South's stamp club, the members sent us two sheets of paper with these staggering words typed in capitals—“SOUTH PHILATELIC CLUB.”

You might conclude that this must be a worthy organization to merit such a man-size word. You're right, it is. This is the Old Faithful of all clubs, and South has a worthy one. Many valuable perforated squares go through their hands and past the inspection of their rather expert eyes.

They hold regular auctions and trade-parleys as companions to their meetings at which discussions and speeches are made. After that they just talk among themselves.

ASSEMBLY CLUB

Back Row—Bill Scheuerman, Robert Hartman, Delbert Lobb, Center Row—Louise Storrs, Marie Tovey, Miss Ella Jane Fellows, Janice Morton, Eleanor Reese, Doris Wilkins.

ASSEMBLY

"... the Settlement depended on the Three Hatties for all the meetings and entertainment, for it was Hattie Jenks, Hattie Polk, and Hattie Hank that voluntarily rounded up talent and planned shows quite professionally. They always blushed modestly, when complimented, after the show. That is, they all blushed except Hattie Jenks; she, with a stern face, would say, "Thank you. We find it worth the trouble..."

The members of the Assembly Club have no time for blushes; they really work. Their job is to find talent, rehearse them, and give a smooth-running program. They confessed that it was difficult to get a new and original theme for each assembly, but they manage nicely—very nicely, say we. They surmise that their work of art for the year was the exchange program of March. Elizabeth Suskin had charge of it. They all look at that favorite brain-child with unusual fondness even though it did almost send the troupe away for a rest cure.

Phyllis Corry, Delbert Lobb, and Eleanor Reese hold official seats, but in spite of it they really find themselves busy. You see, Miss Fellows is the sponsor. That probably explains the perspiration and inspiration.

GIRL RESERVES

" . . . the Settlement fairly bristled with little clubs and organizations, for there were few that had no pursuit; there were few that weren't interesting because of being interested. There were no distinctions here, for men and women, white and red, young and old—all mingled in a mass enjoyment."

The Girl Reserves is a companion club to the Hi-Y. These ladies romp and play much like their Hi-Y friends. Every other week they meet here at South and settle all business. They don't mind this very much, but what they really like is the fortnightly meeting at the "Y" downtown. There they may participate in drama, art or dancing classes. I hardly imagine they'd admit it, but I say a large part of that enjoyment is due to the presence of Hi-Y boys who happen to be present at each of these bi-weekly gatherings.

HI-Y

Back Row—Wayne Jordan, Monte Wenner, Art Smith, Bob Hayes, Marion Hupp, Lester Beihl, Jake Kettler, David Billmeyer, Ed Sweeten, Jim Crouch, Sherman Detrick, Ed Jones.

First Row—Ray Isberg, Leslie Nelson, Berton Stackhouse, Bob Schwartz, George E. Williamson, Francis Geib, Bob Price, Carroll Doyle, Edmund Cressman.

“... as the sun hung a moment, half-hidden in the pocket of the westering peaks, it blazed out pillars of red-gold light to hold up the sky ceiling. The little group of boys stood silent, watching this nightly wonder. They had met to be as one in the wilderness, now they stood, united.”

Following the example set years before, the Hi-Y keeps in mind its purpose of strong fellowship. They gather in the tower room, and we suppose they hold meetings behind that door. Apparently they do, for there are officers: Francis Geib, Robert Fox, Keith Heuser, Bob Schwartz, and Carroll Doyle.

This year, with the Girl Reserves, the club gave a party for the orphans of the Denver Orphans' Home; then they kicked up their heels at a party of the All City Clubs, and also at another, this time a private affair for just the South sector.

Doing much to be proud of in charity and social service, the Club deserves worthy note. We might add that we've always admired that handsome metal sign that swings on the door. It makes quite an impression.

REBEL RANGERS

"... packs on backs and 'Old MacDonal Had a Farm' coming from their lips, the group strode to the edge of the clearing. They waved back as they walked; then the woods opened its arms and enfolded them in a leafy embrace. Only the song remained, growing more faint at each step the invisible travelers took."

The Rebel Rangers are about the only ones left that resemble those husky forefathers we've described throughout these pages. Camping and tramping, skiing and seeing nature in the raw, skipping through pine groves and dipping in icy ponds, the Rangers frolic in the mountains. Guided by Mr. Collier and his head boy and girl, Homer McDanal and Carol Hutchins, mothers need not worry over roaming broods.

Their jaunts and celebrations this year include: Hewes Kirkwood, Hubbard's Ranch, Carlsbad Caverns for four days (the bus broke down), Boulder, Julius Johnson's ranch, Square Dance Contest at the Springs, Cave of the Winds, Echo Lake, Hewes Kirkwood again for skiing, a costume party, an annual banquet and Berthoud Pass for skiing.

This group really enjoys life as only nature's "chillun" can.

REBEL RIFLE CLUB

"... bang! The boys stared as Sarah's shot came four inches nearer the bull's eye than any of theirs. Them girls musta been practicin'! Then, laughing nervously, they jeered the next shooter. Bang! Abbie hit the bull's eye..."

Today we find a whole club of Sarahs and Abbies so able in marksmanship that the male spectators have no time to jeer or laugh nervously, so awed are they. But a year old, the club has fifty members and offers opportunity for the self-defensive female to gain full experience in the use of firearms.

This year's officers were Muriel Warner, Barbara Ensign, Helen Hamilton, Marjorie Drake, and Betty Jean Syler.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Collier they aim to make a crack shot of each member, and the chances are that they certainly will!

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Center Row—Ruth Bidwell, Virginia Fishburn, Wilhelmina Phillips, Kate Milne, Eva Heimer, Elizabeth Suskin, Ruth Rose, Jean Hatton, Eleanor Reese, Marjorie Line, Vivienne May, Reeve Tipton, Lucille Bucher, Edith Stocker.

NATIONAL HONOR

"... deafening noise came from behind the town hall's curtained windows. Two observers sat smoking, in the evening dusk, on a bench across the street. 'It's them kids thet got A's in school, havin' a initiation fer their club.' The two grinned as the door burst open and a blindfolded victim dashed out in shrieking terror. The back of her dress palpitated as a live rat squirmed about for freedom. Several arms reached out and she was whisked back. The door shut. The noise mounted."

Just as bloody are the initiations of South's National Honor Society for painted, ghastly-costumed victims often slink through the halls. Meticulously careful are they in the selection of new members each semester. Only the scholastic leaders are admitted and they are familiar with rakes and coals when the ceremony is completed.

The officers are: Herbert Schumann, Sherman Sutliff, Jane Harrison and Gwendolyn Gwinn.

Noteworthy work was done by Dick Wilson this year, they say in the club. You may bow, Dick; we give you a cheer or so.

National Honor Society has proved its value by taking complete charge of the Lost and Found, and well they do it, too. Another voluntary duty is the auction of found articles. With much ceremony they gather unclaimed goods and their master salesman broadcasts the values of the articles. We hear that the pennies just roll in.

TRIPLE S

Back Row—George M. Williamson, Sherman Sutliff, Dick Lutz, Frank Rodgers, Douglas Liss, Robert Geary, Hugh Thomas, Sherman Detrick, Charles Foster, Charles Dombey.
 Center Row—Marion Hupp, Hilda Gustafson, Rose Louise Howard, Virginia Button, Nathalie Hatton, Lois Miller, Helen Lloyd, Emmaline Avis, Jane Braucht, Louisa Leachman, Martha Songer, Eleanor Reese.

TRIPLE S

"... Professor Crabtree called five names; the owners shuffled up in answer and stood with varying degrees of shyness. The class hungrily glared as the Professor informed them that these five were the best—the very best students in the class. Each heart of the quintette sank. The two boys knew that that day began their terms as official homework doers for the more husky and foggy-brained members of the class. The three girls foresaw entire nights of obliging work for the social luminaries in trade for party 'invites'! ..."

We don't say the same condition still exists today but we've noticed anxious homeworkers storming members of that noble organization, the Triple S, for answers to stubborn questions of any kind, and they answer them readily and sometimes accurately.

You know the requirements, for just about all of us have been in and out of it one time or another. In case you don't: two A's and the remainder B's gains admittance for you.

We're proud to hear that the Society has grown so large that a special board is elected to see to "details." They have guest speakers, too, several a semester.

TRIPLE S

Back Row—Delbert Lobb, Carroll Doyle, Alan Hall, Kyle Packer, Gordon Weller, Benjamin Swan.

Back Row—Robert Fox, Carroll Galbreath, Jack Hickish, Bob Reeves, Bill Stephens, Howard Hicks.
 Center Row—Margaret Jackson, Helen Kinney, Betty Ann Wolfson, Eva Heimer, Marian Jackson, Jean Hatton, Dorothy Rhoads, Carroll Hutchins, Virginia Fishburn, Lucille Bucher.

STAGECRAFT CREW

Back Row—Herb Schilling, Lahoma Litton, Roland Huck, Robert Trottnow, Clyde Ingle, James Campbell, Stanley Beneda, Norm Erard, Wes Glass, Mr. Kendig.

Center Row—Donald Thomas, John Schmidt, Jay Nelson, Bill Boyer, Vernon Bailey, Allen Lee, Widner Lowman, Charles Probst.

STAGE CRAFT

"... a little man stepped before the not-so-artfully painted curtain of the opera house. His eyes scanned the expectant faces, then paused at the sight of the biggest, brawniest male of the gathering. Blushing in his embarrassment he called, 'Matt, will-will ya help us pull tha curtain? It's kinda heavy.' Amid laughter Matt made his way to the footlights. A moment after he disappeared, the curtain trembled but didn't rise. Matt stuck his head out, 'Jawn, will ya come 'ere a minit? You too, Will.' ..."

No such difficulties mar a show at South for the Stage Crew's pride is smooth performance. Under their proficient leader, Mr. Kendig, many ingenious sets have been devised of scant material. Modestly, he guessed that their best work was on the P.-T. A. and the All School show.

Those roping flats this year are Bill Boyer, Robert Trottnow, Wayne Wernet, Roland Huck, Herb Schilling, Charles Probst, Stanley Beneda, Charles Wenzinger, Elmer Weigle, Clyde Ingle, Vernon Bailey, James Campbell, Lahoma Litton, Widner Lowman, Henry Kulik, Allen Lee, John Schmidt, Donald Thomas, Jay Nelson, Norm Erard, Wesley Glass, and Robert Hayes.

SENIOR ACTIVITY GROUP

 Second Row—Elizabeth Steinmetz, Beulah Guthrie, Gwendolyn Gwinn, Phyllis Corry.

SENIOR ACTIVITIES

" . . . the town was bustling; it was the social season, and holidays were coming in bunches. Catching the fever, everyone found something to do. It just wasn't acceptable to Society to be indolent. There was no sport, amusement, or hobby that had no followers. In this fervor the Settlement had its first banquet, and, at the same time, a monthly paper came into being. Ah! This was advancement! In this heated activity the Settlement stepped from its infancy and earned the name—Village!"

It seems that upon their arrival into the Senior Class of 1935 many people began to work. Resembling the Settlers, they buzz around and display distinct dissatisfaction when there is no committee to be in.

These are the Workers: Eleanor Reese and Phillis Corry, assembly skits; Helene Erickson, grade room decoration; Jane Harrison, Mother-Daughter Tea; Doris Rhoads, Senior Prom; Edith McDonald, Senior Movie; Elizabeth Steinmetz, Mother-Daughter Banquet; Bob Hill, Father and Son Night; Edith McDonald, Senior Play; Herb Schumann and Isabell Cantrell, Class Day; Ruth Rose and Ralph McNair, Purple and White Day; Eva Heimer and George Morris, boys' and girls' athletics; Bob De Long, posters. The Senior Party was handled by the Council. We might mention the Annual—that was edited by Edith Stocker and George M. Williamson.

The sponsors were Ruth Ringland and Howard Johnson.

FOLIO LEAVES

Center Row—Elizabeth Steinmetz, Dorothy Knollenberg, Martha Ann Lee, Marguerite Rishel, Lois Sweeten.

FOLIO LEAVES

"... the turkey's squawk echoed from hill to hill as Abbie plucked a long feather from its tail. Then with a deft slice she changed the dull, round end to a sharp point. With a feeling of creative pride she dipped her crude pen in the watery ink—and wrote. Quietly she poured her soul on paper in blots, scratches, and wavering lines."

And quietly Folio Leaves pours its inspirations on paper. Poems, stories, and plays all find their way into existence through this club. And masterful are their strokes too, as is this lovely poem:

SKY SWEEPINGS

I shall hold life hard against me
And run and run
And not look back,
But standing high upon a hill
With my soul stripped bare and shining to the sky
I shall fling back my head
Bravely,
And laugh up at the stars,
Until in quiet surprise their stardust falls
And sinks into my heart,
Then shall I bow my head and silently return.

Bernice Ewers.

Though almost unnoticed in its workings Folio Leaves is coming to be known. This last year selected members broadcast over a local station displaying the talents of Bernice Ewers, Velma Pricer, and Bob Fox.

FRENCH CLUB

Center Row—Robert Steinmetz, Elinor Greer, Beatrice Ewers, Martha Lawrence, Mary Bea Miner, Madame Combs, Harriet Sutliff, Mary Anna Beck, La Nello Lallier, Maxine Adams, Carroll Galbreath.

L'ACADEMIE FRANCAISE

"... little Huck came home from school with a twinkle in his eye. Condescendingly he did his chores and with an air of precocious adulthood sat down at the supper table. Suddenly, without warning he said, 'Passez-moy doo viande!' There was an awed silence, then he explained carelessly. 'Thet's French fer meat.' The silence continued, then Ma said in a low, very awed voice, 'My goodness! Huck kin speak a foreign langwich!'"

Composed of advanced students, the French Club has done much to enhance South's reputation as a home of new ideas. There the language is not merely studied but applied, as the students read novels, write a newspaper and take imaginary trips to France's provinces.

As double climaxes, the club held a dinner-dance, and, far greater, Mrs. Combs will take a group to France this summer.

French students, whose low finances threaten to keep them from going abroad, count and recount their pennies. "Let's see, if I fasted four months..."

REBEL CLUB

"... the Settlement's first touch of exclusiveness came when the boys announced their X X X Club. No one knew what it meant, everyone wondered, and the boys themselves tried frantically to devise a meaning in case they were forced to tell. With a new name the club jumped wildly forward in achievement. They had a dance, they took a New Year's basket, bulging with food, to old Mac down on the river, and they mended several toys for the 'littul kids.' Benevolence made them happy, and in this state they admitted, to the club, persons previously barred."

These fifty Rebel lads are not so exclusive, and they do more things on a large scale. List to this: two all-school dances, two successful assemblies, the annual Santa Claus Shop, and the annual dinner.

Special note should be taken of the golf and tennis trophies the club gave to the school. This encouragement of inter-scholastic events in the two fields is one of the fine things of the year. Many times this was thought of, but it was the Rebel Club that finally went into action.

Action! That is the Rebel Club!

PSYCHOLOGY

"... young Chet sat in the shadow and regarded his family with an analytical air. His father puffed a pipe as he sat before the fire; 'Habit,' Chet mumbled. His mother hummed over her knitting; 'Impulse,' Chet declared to himself. The cat lay on a hot coal, then howled murder; 'Stimulus, reaction, and overt movement,' was the boy's decision. Then his mother barked, 'Chet, help Hannah with them dishus!' Chet rose and groaned, 'Involuntary physical action.' ..."

This group is notable for seeing "quite through the deeds of men." Their eagle eyes peer and study; associates tremble at their appearance; for they know analyses, similar to Chet's, are forthcoming. Their purpose is to plan regular meetings of those sincerely interested, to discuss among themselves and to listen to the experiences of notable guest speakers.

Feeling altruistic, they made a question box for people with problems and queries. At the meetings the box is opened, the contents read, and solutions are forthcoming. They modestly dodge credit, saying, "By serving others, we serve ourselves."

Presiding officials bear the names of Dick Wilson, Janice Morton, and Jack Shannon. The sponsor is Miss McBreen.

LEADERS CLUB

LEADERS CLUB

"... Prof. Crabtree had an idea, but he kept silent for long months. At last, overwhelmed by its possibilities, he determined to carry out his noble experiment. Opposition or not, he would! Instead of having the students work for seats, he'd grade them with A's and B's and—and C's! Yes! This was an idea! . . ."

At South, too, they are carrying out an experiment; they're waiting to see if it's noble.

The theory is that special privileges given a selected group will make leaders of them. Then they, in turn, would influence the student body. The idea is good, and it is being executed with deft strokes. Already the wheels of the organization are turning, and the results are encouraging. Although now tentative, this writer feels that it will soon be a permanent part of South and a goal for aspiring Rebels.

SAFETY COUNCIL

"... law and order became scarce; riots and corpses were plentiful; the Settlement was in a bad way. Suddenly fear glowed in Crime's ugly eyes, for Justice spoke from guns' mouths; social vengeance became a strand in the lynching noose. Silently organized, the vigilantes had come bringing restoration of peace. Once again the citizens enjoyed nocturnal snores in place of shotgun solos. . ."

Though the Safety Council doesn't cope with crime, they have another problem just as serious. It is this group that solves South's traffic problems, interior and exterior. They see that the much persecuted pedestrians don't run over each other in our halls. Truly a unique yet very real problem. But that's not all. They check lockers, have fire drill, and put on various assemblies. As a result South has the assurance of safety and in the case of emergency a planned procedure for everyone.

These boys too, have social inclinations. As you suspected, they gave a dinner-dance in the middle of the year.

In case you've never seen one of those lads, they wear white jackets with purple decoration here and there. Very attractive—the jackets, too.

" . . . from all corners they gathered, working shoulder to shoulder at a mutual task."

Dear Elizabeth,
Even if you are leaving me up here,
you have a habit of doing
that, may our friendship continue on. I am hoping your happiness through out your career.

Love,
Marydella.

CLASSES

They dreamed an ideal then forged a trail. They fought for that goal, then, having gained it, strove to keep it.

The Settlement's population was divided into three parts, each giving an individual quality that was indispensable to the whole. The first group contributed youth and aspiration. From them came the ideals, the dreams. They set the goal. The second and older part gave persistent devotion to the work at hand. They plugged along at their chosen duty, sometimes becoming weary but never losing view of the ultimate destination. Lastly, the third part of this company gave experience and thoughtful action. Their contribution was maturity and modification. These kept the Settlement's equilibrium.

Though definitely in classes, the members of the Settlement never lost the consciousness of a whole group. No division hindered their efforts; no prejudices barred the possibility of a mutual existence. They knew the wisdom of brotherhood.

Through them the Settlement lives, and only through others like them will it continue.

Lots of duck hunting

*Dear Elizabeth
Heris is a small girl
even tho
she is full of the ducks.
I wish you
lots of good luck & success.

Mr. and Mrs.

Don't hide that letter, Peggy!

"Love thy neighbor"—and she does.

On bended knee?

Hugh and I.

Maybe she likes basketball players.

The King—and his queen.

Whoops, too soon!

Bachelor?

Homeward bound.

Ellen couldn't talk back then.

Baby Morton.

Reesie's rubber baby buggy bumpers.

Ellen

Wasn't our prexy sweet?

Cute baby, Helen Mae.

The Hattons.

Exhibit A—the famous Anderson smile.

Harlow or Woudenberg?

Take a g-Lantz at her now.

"Slaughter" Butcher?

Gentleman Jim.

Lorraine, all dolled up.

Cheer up, Evelyn—you look like you'd Dunn something.

Hamill isn't bashful anymore.
